

1 Manager's Minutes, 1728-1948

This series of minutes encompasses the beginnings of the charitable hospital from 1728 through to the inception of the NHS in 1948 and the various changes in administrative structure which have taken place since then. (The period 1974-1984 is listed in LHB28: South Lothian District of the Lothian Health Board).

Managers' Minutes, 1728-1948

These minutes record the managers' administration of the Infirmary when it was run as a charitable institution. In addition to showing the day-to-day running of the Infirmary, they include rules and regulations, notes of staff appointments and of legacies and major contributions to the Infirmary. Until 1871 they include minutes of the General Court of Contributors, which from 1818 contain the Managers' annual report to the Contributors. Before this date, the minutes of the Court of Contributors only include a summary of the number of patients treated and of the accounts. The Managers' Minutes also record the annual meetings of the Ordinary and Extraordinary Managers at which the election of the Ordinary Members (ie those responsible for the day-to-day running of the Infirmary) took place. From November 1869 the minutes of each meeting of Ordinary Managers normally includes a return of patient numbers. The frequency of meetings varies: in the eighteenth century the managers met approximately every month, with additional meetings as the need arose, from 1818 they generally met weekly and from 1910 fortnightly.

Minutes of the Board of Management of the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh and Associated Hospitals, 1948-1974

With the introduction of the NHS in 1948, the RIE ceased to be supported by voluntary contributions and came under the control of the Board of Management of the RIE & Associated Hospitals. The series continues, therefore, with the minutes of the Board of Management of the RIE & Associated Hospitals. Certain committee minutes are also included such as General Purpose, Medical, Radiological, Finance and Law, Nursing, Works and Buildings, Establishment, Comforts Fund and the Dental Hospital Committee.

Minutes, 1974-1984

In 1974 the Boards of Management were disbanded and the South Lothian District of Lothian Health Board became responsible for managing RIE as one of its hospitals until 1984 (see LHB28).

Minutes, 1984-1994

The South Lothian District was abolished in 1984, with more responsibility being devolved to hospital level through the Unit Management Team of the RIE (see LHB42).

Minutes 1994-

From 1994 the RIE was managed by its own NHS Trust (LHB43), and in 1999 the Trusts in Lothian were reorganised and the RIE came under Lothian University Hospitals NHS Trust. From 2004 the Trusts ceased to exist and Lothian University Hospitals became a division of NHS Lothian.

3 Minutes of the Corporation (Court of Contributors) of the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, 1871-1948

This series of minutes began after the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary Act of 1870. Although overall responsibility for the Infirmary rested with the Court of Contributors, over the years authority had gradually passed to the Managers. The 1870 Act officially transferred executive powers of administration to the Managers and subsequently the Managers' and Contributors' minutes were kept in separate volumes. These minutes contain the Managers' report to the Contributors and the Contributors' report thereon, as well as comments on the Infirmary's finances and on matters of major importance, eg the admission of female students.

4 Annual Reports, 1801-1948

Although the Managers decided in 1755 to publish an annual report, the earliest report to survive is that for 1801. Gaps in the series can to some extent be made good by reference to the minutes, which contain annual summaries of the number of patients treated and of the accounts.

The earlier reports consist of the Managers' report to the Court of Contributors, a summary of patients treated and a list of subscribers. The reports gradually expand to include (in addition to the above) the Committee of Contributors report on that of the Managers, lists of office bearers and staff, abstracts of accounts, tables showing the parish of origin and occupation of the patients and lists of beds and wards named after benefactors. From 1895/96 to 1916/17 they contain lists of wards with names of ward staff, and from 1938/39 they include the Simpson Memorial Maternity Pavilion.

The reports for 1948-1974 will be found among the records of the Board of Management of the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh and Associated Hospitals (LHB2), those for 1974-1994 in the records of the RIE and Associated Hospitals Unit (LHB42), and those for 1994-1999 in the records of the RIE NHS Trust (LHB43).

5 Rules and Regulations and Charter, 1730-1965

The Infirmary's rules and regulations were first published in 1730 in a pamphlet describing the establishment of the hospital. This and the other early publications of the history and statutes of the Infirmary were designed for publicity purposes, to encourage subscriptions. As well as regulations relating to the election of managers and the running of the hospital, these publications contain 'job descriptions' for members of staff. The Royal Charter for the Infirmary was issued in 1736. See also GD1/125.

18 The League of Subscribers, 1918-1949

The League of Subscribers was formed in 1918 with the object of raising the 'systematic voluntary contributions from all classes of wage earners, officials and employees generally within the City of Edinburgh and Provincial Districts on behalf of the funds of the Royal Infirmary and of stimulating public interest in all matters affecting the welfare of the institution'.

The League introduced a scheme whereby employees in offices, factories, etc, contributed a penny a week to the Infirmary's funds from their wages. By 1929 1,400 work places were involved and the amount collected that year was £21,500.

In 1930, by means of a Section in an Act of Parliament promoted by Edinburgh Town Council, power was obtained for the election to the Board of Managers of the Infirmary of two League members.

In 1948 the National Health Service took over the job of funding the Infirmary, and in march 1949 the League of Subscribers was formally disbanded.

32 Trusts and Executries, 1879-1957

The first part of this section consists of legal papers and accounts regarding various Trusts which came into being when money and/or property was left to the Infirmary by individuals. The papers include copies of wills, and accounts of charge and discharge of the Intromissions of the Trustees with funds and estates. These papers are divided into pre- and post- 1948. They are arranged alphabetically by name of Trust within these divisions.

The second part of this section contains the papers of Thomas Turnbull. Turnbull was the Infirmary's architect, and when property was bequeathed to the Infirmary he was responsible for its repairs and maintenance. These papers relate to such properties, which may have been rented out by the Hospital. They do not refer to the actual hospital buildings. The papers are arranged in the same way as those of the first part.

35 Pageant and Badge Days, 1920-1948

The Royal Infirmary Pageant was introduced in 1920, and was held annually on a Saturday in May on the Infirmary's 'badge day'. Other similar events were held concurrently in the suburbs and outlying districts. The last pageant was held in 1939, but the tradition is carried on today by the University students in their Charity Parade.

The flag- or badge-selling, which had been an integral part of Pageant Day, continued after the Pageant itself had ceased to be held right up until the Infirmary was taken over by the National Health Service. This annual fund raising event became known as the 'Day of Remembrance Appeal'. In 1948 the last flag day was followed by a Service of Thanksgiving in the Usher Hall.

36 Circular Letters, 1847-1948

Fund raising by the RIE took several forms. Subscriptions were solicited, either towards a specific project, or as an annual donation, and subscribers' names appear on the donor boards in the hospital's main entrance hall. A wider public was reached through annual collection days in churches, parishes and factories, and for this purpose local treasurers were chosen to collect the money and send it to the hospital.

Most of the following circulars are appeals for subscriptions and reminders to local treasurers to forward their collections. Any circulars on other topics are detailed below.

Bundles 1-4 consist of circulars which were at one time stuck into a letter book or other volume. Bundle 7, although not circulars, relates to local collections.

40 House Steward's Department, 1864-1968

Until 1948 the House Steward's department was responsible for provisioning the hospital through gifts in kind and through purchases. It also dealt with furniture, bedding, linen, clothing, coal, cleaning articles, etc.; ie all the housekeeping. The Steward was expected to check deliveries for quantity and quality, and to check usage and discourage waste.

The laundry building was situated near the west entrance gate. It was rebuilt in the 1890s, and extended and modernised in 1936. Living accommodation was provided for laundry maids on an upper floor, until a resident laundry staff was abolished in about 1939. Prior to 1947 the laundry was under the care of a Laundry Mistress who was responsible to the Lady Superintendent. In 1947 a male Laundry Manager, capable for maintaining the washing machines, was appointed.

After 1948 various committees and, in some instances, the Department of Health for Scotland, took over the placing of contracts for goods and provisions. The House Steward was still responsible for ordering goods at the right time, checking quality and supervising issues and usage.

The post of House Steward was abolished in 1969. Thereafter the work was transferred to the administrative department and dealt with by a Principal Administrative Officer (Supplies). In 1971 the Infirmary's laundry was closed by stages, and its work transferred to the new laundry at the Western General Hospital.

This Charter 'Erected, Created and Incorporated ... all and every the said contributors who have already contributed to the Infirmary and all such persons as shall hereafter contribute thereto, into one body corporate and politic, by the name of the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh'.

The Court met in January of each year. The Edinburgh Royal Infirmary Act of 1870 limited membership of the court to those who had contributed at least one single donation of £5 or made annual payments of £1 or over. This Act redefined the powers of the Court: it was to have no executive function in the management of the hospital, but might make recommendations to the Managers. It was authorised to alter the rules of the Infirmary, or make new rules for it.

55 Radium: Radiological Committee, 1928-1948

In 1895 Wilhelm Rontgen discovered the penetrating properties of X-rays, and in 1898 the Curies discovered the radio-active element, radium. In 1898 the Infirmary opened its Medical Electrical Department in which both these new discoveries were used. X-rays were used in diagnosis, and radium needles in the treatment of patients. The Department was initially housed in a former splint store and plumbers' workshop, but, in 1904, it moved to larger premises in the basement of the Surgical House.

By the 1920s these X-rays were being used not only for diagnosis, but also in the treatment of cancer and other conditions. It was decided, therefore, to build and equip a new radiological department midway between the surgical and medical houses. The new Department was opened on 9th October 1926 by the Duke of York. It had been designed by Thomas Turnbull to meet the requirements of the hospital's Radiologist, Dr J Woodburn Morison. Incorporated in the new building were precautions to ensure the safety of operators from over-exposure to X-rays.

In 1928, following a bequest by Lady Mary Anderson, the Infirmary decided to establish a Radium Institute for the treatment of cancer patients at 'Beechmount', Corstorphine. 'Beechmount' opened to patients in 1932, and, in 1934, it became the first hospital outside London to receive a radium 'bomb'.

In 1939 the 'bomb' was removed for safety to a deep shaft in the grounds of the Infirmary.

Papers in bundles 2-12 were found in a folder marked 'Radiological committee'.

58 Staff Fund Committee: Papers, 1939-1945

With the outbreak of World War II junior members of the Honorary Medical Staff found that the income from private work, on which they depended, had diminished or disappeared. Their financial position contrasted unfavourably with that of their colleagues in the Forces, and yet their services were essential to the running of the country's hospitals.

In December 1939 the Department of Health for Scotland agreed to make annual grants to 'junior specialists' and to clinical tutors who remained in the hospitals.

The Infirmary set up a Staff Fund Committee to administer the allocation of these grants among the different departments of the hospital.

- 1 1939-1945 Correspondence re allocation and apportionment of above grant and additional payment from DHS. (26 items)
- 2 1940-1944 Lists of sums allocated to the various individual members of staff. (19 items)
