Introduction

1788 saw the institution of the Edinburgh and Leith Humane Society. In 1815 the Society opened a Dispensary, and in 1837 a Casualty Hospital. In 1848 the Dispensary and Hospital combined as Leith Hospital. In 1907 the Hospital was incorporated.

Leith Hospital, situated in Mill Lane, was a general hospital with wards, medical and surgical, for men, women and children as well as an accident unit.

In 1886 the Directors of the Hospital agreed to grant the application from Sophia Jex Blake and allow women medical students to attend Leith Hospital for clinical instruction.

In 1948 Leith Hospital became part of the Edinburgh Northern Hospital Group of the South Eastern Hospital Board.

In 1974 it became part of the North Lothian District of Lothian Health Board.

In the summer of 1987 the hospital was closed, its functions being transferred to the Western General Hospital.

38 Leith Roll of Honour, 1920-2008

The Leith Roll of Honour, created by a resolution of the Leith Town Council, lists the 2205 officers and men who were killed in the Great War of 1914-1918, as well as the 350 who earned special honours. It was compiled with information obtained from the Leith Observer newspaper which published forms that could be completed by relatives of those killed. The first volume contains details on the background to the War and a summary of its events, including the part played by the town and people of Leith. The list of deceased gives name, age, address, army division and number, and cause and date of death.
